What Do You Think of Japanese Question?

There having been a considerable amount of comment during the past summer regarding renting of houses in Ocean Beach to Japanese families, the Ocean Beach News columns will be open to articles of 500 words or less, from our subscribers. You may say what you wish, within reason, either for or against but please try and confine your selves to facts.

—The Editor.

October 31, 1934.

Editor,

The Japanese question in Ocean Beach is the old situation of a small minority making it miserable for the larger majority by confronting us constantly with the problem of deciding whether or not we want to sacrifice our homes and property, sell out and get out, or turn our community over to a few, because they have properties they are unable to rent to white people, are willing to overrun us with unassimilable Japanese for a small, selfish profit.

Naturally there are two sides to the question, and I will admit they have to have some place to live, that they are human beings, that their money is as good as ours and God made them, and all the other arguments are all good, but Ocean Beach is a white man's settlement, built up by white people, with the assurance that they could live in a white neighborhood, patronize white merchants and send their children to white schools and we don't want Japanese or any race but white, and there is no reason why the majority should not rule.

As an example of what a Japanese invasion does, look at any of their settlements in San Diego, the houses are run down, lawns uncared for, property values depreciated and the invitation always open in such neighborhoods for the worse invasion of negroes, because if you have one race, you are bound sooner or later to have the other. It is not a question of whether or not they are clean, decent and law-abiding, there is no reason why they should not be, but whether we want a community 100% white or are satisfied with a lesser percentage, so that some broker or property renter can make a few extra dollars.

It was but a few years ago that the home owners and property renters in a mass meeting held in the Ocean Village, declared that they were not only opposed to the renting of properties to Japanese, but directed the secretary of the chamber of commerce to send a copy of the OCEAN BEACH NEWS, containing a report of the meeting to all Japanese newspapers and organizations to warn them they were not wanted, which I think an excellent idea. About seventy-five copies were mailed with a distinct falling off of the Japanese invasion the following seasons.

I know we are hard up and need the money, but we cannot better ourselves by ruining our community.

Navy Boys Will Be Welcomed Home Today

Tuesday the dirigible Macon cruised over the beaches for several hours before mooring at Camp Kearney where it remained until Wednesday evening when it headed south over the open sea to meet the fleet of warships returning to base at San Diego.

Friday morning these ships with some 23,000 men aboard will enter the harbor to make this their home port. Shortly after daylight 200 airplanes will leave the airplane carriers off Coronado and alight at North Island.

The ships, it is believed, will steam into port about 6 a. m., though a definite time has not been announced. Hundreds of sightseers will take vantage points on Point Loma and adjoining the harbor entrance to San Diego bay. With the homecoming today of these two fleets San Diego bay will harbor 92 warships and auxiliaries, together with crews of officers and men.

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETING POSTPONED

The regular monthly meeting of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce has been postponed from next Monday evening, November 12, to a later date, definite time of meeting to be announced later thru the columns of the Ocean Beach News.

RICHLEY'S GET RETURN OF STOLEN MERCHANDISE

John E. Brown of 4984 Del Monte avenue, a boy of 12, last Friday confessed to having entered the Richley Hardware store the night of October 29, and stealing therefrom $150 worth of rifles, shotguns, watches, locks and knives.

Practically everything has been returned except some shells.

This boy, according to police record, has previous record and was on probation from the detention home to which place he has been returned.

With the Brown boy, it is reported, was Robert Crowell of 4571 Narragansett avenue, when the store was entered.

MISS HARRISON HONORED AT PRE-NUPRIAL PARTY

Miss Dorothy Harrison, whose engagement to Dr. Adrian E. Cooper has been announced, was honored with a pretty towel shower by Mrs. E. Olsen, Sunset Cliffs blvd., Ocean Beach, Friday evening.

Miss Harrison was presented with the deed to a miniature house and lot in which the many attractive gifts were cleverly arranged. Bunco and other games were played throughout the evening.

Guests were Mesdames Herbert Taylor, Edie Stivers, Raymond Haywood, Walter Morefield, Harry E. Bailey, Maurice Gower, George So-tair, and Misses Dorothy Harrison, Kate McCullough, Margaret Rankin, Dorothy Vaughn and Jean Harrison.

CITY WATER BONDS AND ZOO

The first three of the following items needed a two-thirds vote to carry, therefore these bonds were defeated.

The zoo amendment did not need a two-thirds majority therefore it carried. The latest available figures were as follows:

Sales Tax Brings Large Returns

SACRAMENTO November 3—Exceeding the corresponding figure for any previous quarter by more than $400,000, California's retail sales tax collections for the months of July, August and September have reached a total of $12,821,776.18. This was revealed here today by Richard E. Collins, chairman of the State Board of Equalization, which handles the administration of the tax.

"At a corresponding date after the close of the quarter ended June 30," said Collins, "the yield from the 2 1/2 per cent retail sales tax for that period was $12,410,846.06. That figure surpassed any previous yield so that the returns for the quarter just ended are particularly gratifying as an indication of sustained improvement in business conditions."

Since the inception of the tax on August 1, 1933, sales tax collections have aggregated $59,002,164.81, an average of more than $4,200,000 per month. On this basis Collins estimates that the annual yield from the tax will be well in excess of $50,000,000.

Commenting upon the use to which this revenue is put by the State, Collins said: "This money is devoted to the support of our public school system and has made possible a substantial reduction in property taxes throughout California. Thus while the burden of taxation on property has been lowered, we have been able to provide adequate support for our schools out of sales tax proceeds."

RELIGIOUS BROADCASTING FOR CHILDREN

At 5:30 Sunday evening, Dr. Roy Campbell will broadcast the plan: Religious Broadcasting for Children of all Nations.

Monday morning on the Good Cheer hour, 9:15 a. m., Margaret J. Rankin, originator of the idea, will tell the story of the plan in an interview with Rev. W. S. Dunn of the Ocean Beach Baptist church.

Both broadcasts will be over KFSD.

CABLE & VOLTAIRE SERVICE STATION HAS NEW OWNERS

Tom Davies and R. W. McCleary, the latter part of October, bought the interest of Floyd and Curry at the Cable street service station at corner of Voltaire, opposite Cooper's Drug store.

The new owners are Pacific Beach boys, experienced in their business and according to an advertisement elsewhere in this issue they will be pleased to service your auto with check-chart lubrication, accessories and expert mechanical repair. They have the only ice station in Ocean Beach.

HEARING DATE SET FOR BEACH PROBLEM

A hearing to determine whether certain property on Voltaire street should be placed in a business zone will be held by the city planning commission Nov. 22 at 3:30 p. m. in city hall. The property affected is lots 5 to 24, inclusive, in block 18, and lots 25 to 44, inclusive in block 13, Ocean Beach park.—Tribune.

OCEAN BEACH BA SEBALLERS BEAT SAN DIEGO MARKET 10-3

Ocean Beach opened the County League games Sunday on their home diamond at Collier park defeating the San Diego Market 10 to 3. Red Walters was the strongest pitcher, letting the Market down with six hits. Helm, catcher, lead in hitting, with a single and a triple. Hurst converted for a home run.

At Collier park, Ocean Beach, National city will play our home team, Sunday, November 11.

ALLEN SEES CHINA AT FAIR

THE WORLD IS STILL WIDE. No adventure any more? No romance any where? No new place to see? But listen: This is what is posted on the car window of A. J. Allen, the world traveler.

A short while ago Mr. Allen and his party arrived back from around America trip, making 10,000 miles by auto, going through 31 states and 2 foreign countries.

Seeing wonders in the United States, Mr. Allen says that the greatest wonder spots are right here on this continent. Mr. Allen is qualified in saying this as he has traveled in all parts of the world and he will enumerate some of these wonders: First—We have the finest roads in the world. Then we are building Boulder dam in Nevada. When there a short time ago the top forms were at an elevation of 940 feet above bed rock which will raise the water level of the river 582 feet. The base is 650 feet and 45 feet at the top. The crest 1,181 feet, including the aqueduct the cost will be $389,000,000. When this dam is completed it will form a reservoir about 115 miles in length. It would cover the entire state of Connecticut to a depth of 10 feet.

Then we have Death Valley, California, where one can see the highest and lowest points in the United States at one time. Then we have Zion National Park with its Mountain of Mystery and Angel's Landing and the Great White Throne where man has never set his foot. I have never seen anywhere the hand work of God, fashioned or portrayed more beautiful or impressive than in Bryce Canyon.

One artist has counted more than sixty tints. They are a wonder to behold, overlaid with a sea of bright colors. Also, there is Rainbow Natural Bridge 274 feet wide and 300 feet high. The largest natural bridge known in the world. Kaibab National Forest, Arizona with 45,000 deer that roam at peace. Then we have in the same forest a citizen, one so rare, he is found nowhere else in the world. This is the white-tailed kaibab squirrel. Earth's greatest chasm—Grand Canyon of Arizona. 9,000 feet deep from point Imperial and 8 miles wide and by the turn of the head your eyes take in 75 miles of Grand Canyon as it spreads before you. MAN MADE CRATER. Man turned this mountain inside out. After fifteen years of drilling and scooping, the mountain became a vast 600 foot pit in the heart of Bisbee, Arizona. Big Redwood trees in Sequoia—Gigantic. The General Grant tree—diameter 103 feet and 273 feet high. The oldest living things 4 to 5 thousand years old.

The Christian Science Publishing House, Boston, Mass. The building is 635 feet long, 115 feet at its widest part, the floor area totals about 329,000 square feet. Materials from 12 foreign countries which could not be obtained in the U.S.A., were used in this construction. Over the gateway leading from Massachusetts avenue into the gardens is the inscription, "The Christian Science Publishing Society", while around the tower as a crowning feature appears the eight following words on either side of the four corners "Faith, Hope, Love, Mercy, Justice, Purity, Health, Peace."

Then the great Mormon Tabernacle. One of the largest auditoriums in the world, in Salt Lake City was built entirely of wood without using a single nail. The flaming geyser where once a day the water in the hole bubbles and raises violently and when a match is thrown into the pool flames burst forth and raise from 6 to 8 feet in the air. The gigantic Arrowhead 1,500 feet long found on the great American Desert points to a number of healing spring waters. The hotel built on a glacier at an altitude of 12,700 feet at Rocky Mt. Park-Estes park Colorado. The rattlesnake dance of the Hopi Indians in New Mexico and Arizona. Stone Mountain of Georgia, the largest body of solid granite in the world, which stands alone in the midst of a level plain. Then the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor that stands on a prison. The Craters of the Moon, Idaho; the oldest house in the United States at Santa Fe, New Mexico; the Mammoth Caves of Kentucky and the great but less known Carlsbad Cavern in New Mexico; Old Faithful in Yellowstone park, the famous geyser; the New York's Empire State Building; the Rocky Lake of Write Haven, Pa.; the bottom of Crater Lake in Oregon has never been found, and I will add this that there is no lake so blue in the world; Niagara Falls has cut solid rock for a distance of 300 miles.

The first oil well ever drilled in the United States—75th anniversary and Diamond Jubilee.

In August of this year I visited Titusville, Pa., and saw the dedication.

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

BANKERS NOT AGREED ON NEW DEAL ECONOMIC POLICIES— BALKAN WAR CLOUDS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

FOUR thousand or so financiers gathered in Washington for the annual convention of the American Bankers' association, and it became apparent at once that they were far from unanimous in their opinions concerning the economic policies of the New Deal. Francis Marion Law of Houston, Texas, retiring president of the association, gave out an interview in which he said he believed that economic recovery had arrived at a point where bankers of the United States could honestly advise business men to go into debt again in order to put idle bank reserves to work. Further, he stated that bankers feel that the securities of the United States government are the best investment "on the face of the earth" and that there need be no concern over the condition of government credit.

What made this expression especially noteworthy was the fact that only recently the federal advisory council, composed of leading bankers, issued a warning that government credit was being menaced by the unbalanced condition of the federal budget and the unstabilized dollar.

It was understood the association would avoid open discussion of the controversial subjects raised by the advisory council because the delegates realized that agreement among them would be impossible. Many of them represent banks now controlled by the government through stock ownership by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and might not feel free to speak their minds.

Mr. Law in his interview blamed business men for the failure of bank loans to expand.

"Business men," he said, "being naturally conservative, figure that this is a period of change and, wondering what the future holds, they prefer through their timidity to see what developments will be before they go into debt."

"Therefore, it is time that the banker, by exhibiting his own confidence in recovery, should persuade the business man that it is safe to start borrowing and expanding."

WAR clouds over central Europe are not dissipated by the partial solution of the plot that resulted in the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia. It is established that the murder was the work of the Croatian group of terrorists called the Oustacha, and the head of the gang, Dr. Anton Pavelic, has been arrested, together with his assistant, Eugene Kvaternik. The three companions of the assassin, who were captured in France, have confessed that they trained for the job in a camp in Hungary and held Hungarian passports. It is charged in the French press that they or their Oustacha chiefs were in secret contact with Hungarian or Italian officials, and if it can be established that their funds came from such sources, most serious complications may result.

The permanent councils of both the little entente and the Balkan entente, which include Rumania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Greece and Turkey, have issued identical communiques asserting their solidarity with Yugoslavia and laying responsibility for King Alexander's assassination upon terrorists urged on by the foreign policies of nations which were not named but which clearly are indicated to be Hungary and Italy.

The communiques gave warning of a probable war unless "international measures are loyally adopted" to stop political assassination and conspiracy. Both the ententes decided to adopt common measures against all political conspirators.

So far, Hungary is bearing the brunt of the blame for the Marseilles assassination, but Premier Goemboes asserts his country is "entirely guiltless of any connection with the foul crime." As he was departing for Warsaw to complete a pact with Poland, the premier said:

"We can prove we never harbored the king's murderer or any other assassin, and the idea of Yugoslavia serving an ultimatum on us is too puerile to discuss. Yugoslavia has a good reason to remember it was an ultimatum served on old Serbia that provoked the World War. Surely she does not wish to set Europe on fire again."

Premier Nikola Uzunovich of Yugoslavia and his cabinet resigned, and he was commissioned by the regency to form a new government more suitable to the present situation. The regency, it was said, was preparing to grant wide amnesty to political prisoners who would promise to support the government.

WITH overpowering pomp and ceremony Alexander I, assassinated king of Yugoslavia, was laid to rest with his fathers, the founders of the Karageorgevitch dynasty. Nearly every nation on earth was represented at the funeral rites.

For two days Alexander's body lay in state in the palace while the people passed by the bier. Then it was removed to the cathedral for requiem high mass, after which there was a two mile procession to the railway station. From there the body was conveyed to Topolo, 53 miles from the capital, and interred in the family mausoleum.

EIGHT federal officers led by Melvin Purvis, head of the Justice department's bureau of investigation in Chicago, caught up with Charles A. Floyd, known as "Pretty Boy," on a farm near East Liverpool, Ohio, and a few minutes later the desperado of the Ozarks was dead with fifteen bullets in his body. He had two automatic pistols but did not fire a shot as he sought to escape across a field. Floyd, accused of at least seven murders and lately of complicity in the Kansas City depot massacre, was hunted for years. He was Oklahoma's most notorious outlaw since the days of Al Jennings and the Daltons.

TWELVE hundred delegates assembled in Miami for the sixteenth annual convention of the American Legion, and with them were 70,000 other veterans, members of the auxiliary and other visitors attracted by the colorful event. Gov. Dave Sholtz of Florida welcomed them on behalf of the state, and Commander Edward A. Hayes followed with his annual report. This dealt largely with the Legion's drive for "Americanism."

"Throughout the year every effort has been extended by the Americanism commission to combat the ever-increasing inroads of the radical and subversive groups," declared the retiring commander, adding that the mandates handed down by the national convention in Chicago a year ago have been "followed out in so far as it was possible to do so."

Declaring that high schools, colleges and universities, and in some instances religious groups, have been "caught in a web of un-American propaganda which is being woven by radical agitators," Hayes' report emphasized that the Americanism commission has centered its counter-attack upon the schools.

When President Roosevelt dedicated a veterans' hospital at Roanoke, Va., the other day, he let it be known that he is still firmly opposed to immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, and said that the veterans, as a class, "are better off from the point of view of unemployment and of annual income than the average of any other great group of our citizens."

Disputing this view, Commander Hayes said:

"The experience of those of us who have been devoting the last fifteen years to the problems of the World war veterans has supplied us with ample proof that a vast majority are in a class of handicap because of their service to the government in war."

"The loss of time, which they virtually donated to the government; the interruption of their careers, the loss of their priority and the decrease in their earning power, in thousands of instances due to disability, have set them permanently back of the average citizen."

In this other leaders of the Legion and those of the auxiliary concurred.

ACCORDING to reports in Washington, President Roosevelt and his advisers were completing their relief plans for 1935, these providing for abandonment of the federal dole and a five billion dollar program of work relief with the intention of providing a job for every one who is physically able to work. The care of those physically disabled will be left to local communities. For the others places will be provided on federal work projects, many of which it is hoped will be self-liquidating. Some of these projects already are under way. They include housing and slum clearances, a widened application of the subsistence homestead program and of rural rehabilitation, and the elimination of grade crossings.

How to raise the five billion dollars is a question. Insiders think the President favors a relief bond issue to be sold as were the Liberty bonds, from house to house, through appeal to the patriotism of the people.

C. W. A. SCOTT and Campbell Black of England, flying their Red Comet plane, won the great London to Melbourne air derby, reducing the record by many hours. The second plane to arrive in Melbourne was that of K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll of Holland. They gave the winners a close race though flying a longer route. Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, Americans, lost time when they wandered from the course near Allahabad, India, but came in third. James and Amy Mollison, the famous flying couple from England, led at the start, but were forced to quit in India by damaged motors.

Tragedy marked the race when Harold Gillman and James Baines of England crashed in flames in Italy and were burned to death.

Twenty planes started on the 11,323 mile flight but several were forced out of the contest by mechanical trouble.

VIRTUALLY at full battle strength, the United States fleet sailed from Guantanamo, Cuba, for its fall maneuvers in the Caribbean. The vessels headed for Panama, where it was planned to make a great "attack" on the canal. The fleet was to attempt to destroy the shore defenses at the Atlantic entrance, to break through the submarine and airplane defense and to pass through the canal.

GEN. ALEXANDER VON KLUCK, who led a German army through Belgium in 1914 and came within an ace of capturing Paris, died at his home in Berlin at the age of eighty-eight years. He always attributed his failure to take the French capital to orders to retreat which were transmitted to him from the general staff. Von Kluck had distinguished himself long before the World war, having served in the Austro-Prussian war of 1866 and the Franco-Prussian war.

JAMES ROSS MELLON of Pittsburgh, eldest member of the famous family of bankers and brother of Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, died after a long illness. About 15 years ago he retired from active business and devoted the rest of his life to his many philanthropic and charitable interests.

BRUNO HAUPTMANN'S effort to avoid extradition from New York failed, so he was taken to jail at Flemington, N. J., to await trial for the murder of Colonel Lindbergh's baby boy. Attorney General Wilentz and his staff of assistants were completing their arrangements for presenting the case against the carpenter.

C. L. Lightfoot of Franklin Park, N. J., told reporters that his son, Richard, fifteen years old, had identified Hauptmann as the man who had talked to the family's chauffeur on the back road ten days before the Lindbergh kidnapping.

LIBERAL and low church members of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church won a victory over the conservatives in the convention at Atlantic City and brought about a surprising upset. By a vote of 44 to 38 the bishops approved the following resolution:

"We indorse the efforts now being made to secure for licensed physicians, hospitals and medical clinics freedom to convey such information as is in accord with the highest principles of eugenics and a more wholesome family life wherein parenthood may be undertaken with due respect for the health of the mother and the welfare of the children."

So tense was the session that Right Rev. Paul Matthews, bishop of New Jersey, threatened "to leave this house forever" when a motion to limit debate was proposed. Other bishops were equally outspoken. Scornfully, Right Rev. Simeon Arthur Huston, bishop of Olympia, Wash., dismissed objections to birth-control as "a lot of pious twaddle from celibate clergymen."

LOUISVILLE'S sensational kidnapping case came to a climax with the return of the victim, Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, to her home. The young society matron had been held captive for six days in Indianapolis by Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., a maniac who had twice been confined in insane asylums. She was treated rather roughly but not really injured, and was set free after Mr. Stoll paid $50,000 ransom. Robinson fled with all but $500 of this sum and a country-wide hunt for him was at once begun. His wife and father were arrested, charged with complicity in the kidnapping. Mrs. Robinson, however, was said to have protected Mrs. Stoll to the best of her ability and it was she who returned the abducted woman to her relatives.

In Detroit one Edward Lickwala, a youth with a police record, was arrested for attempting to extort $5,000 from Edsel Ford under threats of death. He was promptly indicted by a federal grand jury, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve ten years in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went to Williamsburg, Va., and took part in the ceremonies attendant on the inauguration of John Stewart Bryan as president of the old College of William and Mary. In return for his courtesy Mr. Roosevelt was given the honorary degree of doctor of laws. The same honor was conferred on Gov. George C. Peery. The exercises were conducted in the reconstructed main building of the college, designed by Sir Christopher Wren.

On the same day took place the formal rededication of Duke of Gloucester street, the city's main thoroughfare, which has been restored nearly to its original appearance as the last major construction project of the restoration of colonial Williamsburg. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., financial backer of the restoration which already has cost approximately $15,000,000, was among the distinguished visitors present.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL is vexed by what he calls the "indefensible practice" of certain countries in boosting tariffs or other restrictions to obtain concessions by reducing them again in negotiations with the United States for trade agreements. He made a statement about it, intimating that under such conditions there may be a failure of negotiations.

Although no nation was named, Germany has begun a program of controlled imports and has denounced its most-favored-nation treaty with the United States, and France is increasing tariffs.

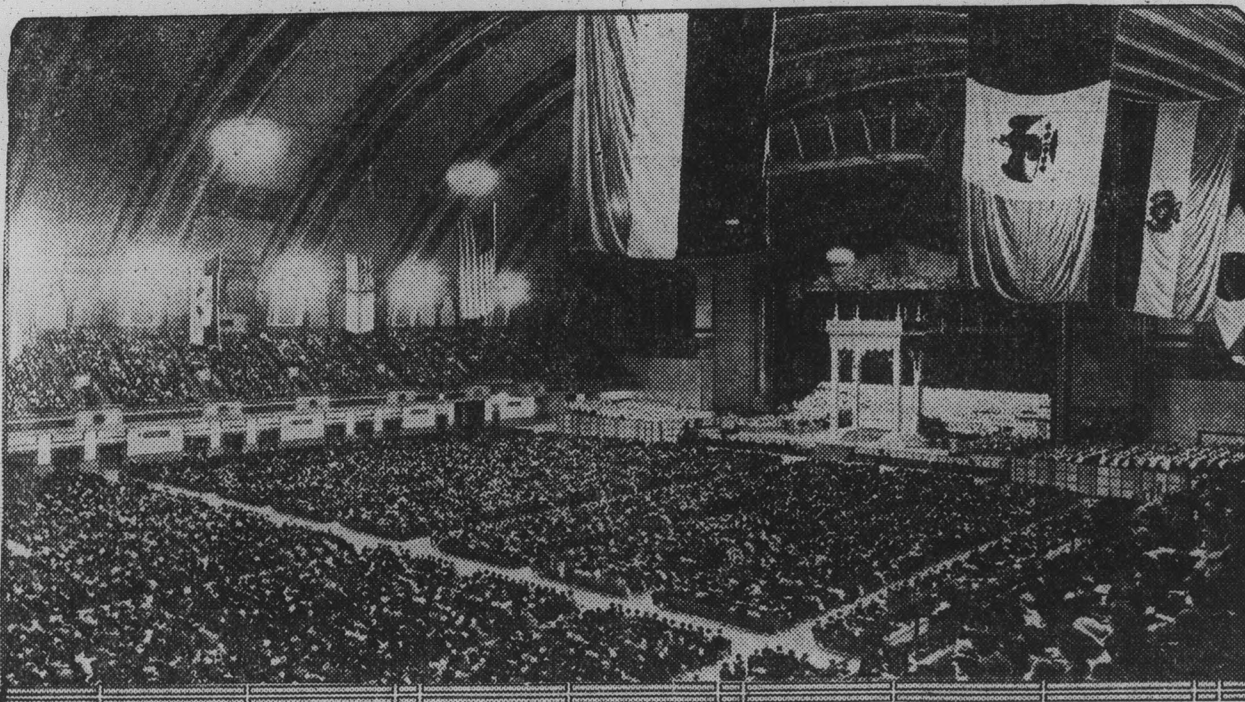

TO THE White House correspondents President Roosevelt said that a federal housing program with a great many ramifications undoubtedly would be submitted to the next congress and also would constitute an important part of the administration's future relief policy.

Got Her Lock of Hair, but Not Paderewski's

Paderewski has, like many another notability, undergone the ordeal of complying with autograph hunters' demands for signatures. But the famous pianist, if we may judge by what is said to have happened on one occasion, draws the line at the distribution of mementoes in the shape of samples of his beautiful hair, at least gifted by nature with a profusion of that article.

It was when he was visiting America that a well-known society woman had the audacity to hand through the window of his private car a gushing epistle, winding up with the request for "a lock of hair." It is alleged that Paderewski's secretary replied as follows: "You fail to specify whose hair you desire. M. Paderewski, therefore, in order to avoid disappointment, has secured for you some fine specimens from his manager, secretary, valet, waiter two cooks, and the cat."

Sufficient Proof

"Are you an experienced secretary?" "Of course. I haven't bought my own lunch for years."

Mother and Three Consecutive Sets of Twins

MRS. HENRY BATES of Heber Springs, Ark., is one of the few mothers in the United States with three consecutive sets of twins. The twin boys, aged four, are Earl and Murrill; the twin girls, aged three, are Leola Fay and Naomi Ray; and the three-months-old babies are a boy, Billie Jean, and a girl, Willie Dean. The mother is thirty-four and the father forty-two.

JENNY WREN GOSSIP ABOUT HUMMER

AS PETER RABBIT sat staring up at the tiny nest of Hummer the Hummingbird, which he had just discovered, Jenny Wren came along. Being quite tired from the feeding of her seven babies, Jenny was content to rest for a few minutes and gossip. Peter told her what he had discovered.

"I know all about that," retorted Jenny. "You don't suppose I hunt these trees over for food without knowing where my neighbors are living, do you? I'd have you understand that this is the daintiest nest in the Old Orchard. It is made wholly of plant down and covered on the outside with bits of that gray moss-like stuff that grows on the bark of the trees and is called lichen. That is what makes that nest look like nothing more than a knot on a branch. Chatterer the Red Squirrel made a big mistake when he visited this tree. Hummer may be a tiny fellow, but he isn't afraid of anybody under the sun. That bill of his is so sharp and he is so quick that few folks ever bother him more than once. Why, there isn't a single member of the hawk family that Hummer won't attack. There isn't a cowardly feather in him."

"What Do You Mean by Pumping Food Down Their Throats?" He Demanded.

"Does he go very far south for the winter?" asked Peter. "He is such a tiny fellow I don't see how he can stand such a long journey."

"Huh!" exclaimed Jenny Wren, "distance doesn't bother Hummer any. You needn't worry about those wings of his. He goes clear down to South America, where he has ever so many relatives. You ought to see his babies when they first hatch out. They are no bigger than bees. But they certainly do grow fast. They are flying three weeks from the time they hatch. I'm glad I don't have to pump food down the throats of my youngsters the way Mrs. Hummingbird has to do hers."

Peter looked perplexed. "What do you mean by pumping food down their throats?" he demanded.

"Just what I say," retorted Jenny Wren. "Mrs. Hummer sticks her bill right down their throats and then pumps up the food she has already swallowed. I guess it is a good thing the babies have short bills."

"Do they?" asked Peter, opening his eyes wide.

"Yes," replied Jenny. "When they hatch out they have short bills, but it doesn't take them a great while to grow long."

"How many babies does Mrs. Hummer usually have?" asked Peter.

"Just two," replied Jenny. "Just two. That's all that nest will hold. But goodness gracious, Peter, I can't stop gossiping here any longer. You have no idea what a care seven babies are."

With a jerk of her tail off flew Jenny Wren and Peter hurried back to tell Johnny Chuck all he had found out about Hummer the Hummingbird.

QUESTION BOX By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have just arrived in this country—my first visit here since 1903. Kindly tell me: When the prohibition law was passed was it a big surprise to the people?

Truly yours,

C. CAPTAIN.

Answer: I'll tell the cock-eyed world it was a surprise to the people. In fact, it took most of the people's breath away.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

In our town there is a burglar who is causing considerable trouble as well as curiosity. The police can't catch him. The report is that he travels around absolutely nude. What I want to know is this: What shall I do if some night I find the robber in my house and he is really naked?

Yours truly,

D. TECTIVE.

Answer: Cover him with your revolver.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Do you think it is possible to go 20 miles on a gallon?

Yours truly,

OTTO MOBEEL.

Answer: With the kind of stuff you get today some folks get to heaven on a quart.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I'm the fellow you hollered at last night in the automobile. I was in a hurry so could not stop to help you. I saw you and your wife slip and fall and also saw the lamp post fall over on top of you both. Sorry I couldn't stop to help you. How did you get out of your trouble?

Yours truly,

L. AUTO STOPPED.

Answer: We didn't slip. It was the wind which blew us over and also blew the lamp post over on top of us. I sent for the postmaster and he took the post office. (off us.)

Dear Mr. Wynn: Will water always put out a fire? Yours truly,

N. SURANCE.

Answer: Not always. I know of a case where a man threw a match off the Brooklyn bridge and it lit on the water.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I hear you are a student of economics. I want you to advise me on one point. As an example, say that wheat was selling retail at $2 a bushel. Say a farmer sold 3,000 bushels of wheat to a wholesaler. What would the farmer get?

Yours truly,

E. KONOMIST.

Answer: He'd get an automobile. © The Associated Newspapers. WNU Service.

DISHERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

FOR a Sunday night lunch a simple dish which is easy to prepare and serve is the following:

Sunday Dish.

Melt one-half of a tablespoonful of butter, add one cupful of grated crumbs, mix well, add two cupfuls of milk with one well-beaten egg. Mix and cook; when hot, add one-half cupful of grated cheese, a bit of salt and a dash of paprika and cayenne. Serve on crisp rounds of buttered toast. Mustard, too, may be added if desired.

Date Puff.

Beat six eggs separately, add one cupful of powdered sugar to the yolks of the eggs, one-half cupful of walnut meats and half a package of dates finely cut. Add four heaping tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs to which one teaspoonful of baking powder is added. Mix well, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and bake half an hour in a slow oven. Serve with whipped cream.

Buttered Parsnips.

Cut the parsnips into even-sized pieces and place in a heavy kettle with two or three tablespoonfuls of butter, depending upon the amount of parsnips. Stir and cook without adding any water, if possible. When tender the parsnips will be a light brown and

RECORDS WHITEWASHED

When John Vacko, headman of Lhots, Czechoslovakia, returned home he found that the walls of his room had been whitewashed by his wife, so he beat her. John told the judge the local council meets in the room, and to save paper, he had written the minutes on the walls. His wife's act caused the loss of an entire year's records.

THIS CHANGE gives Children a Chance

Perhaps you have tried nearly every sort of way to keep a child's bowels in proper condition, and failed.

Yet, almost any child who has been convalescing in a hospital, will usually come out with bowels working like a well-regulated watch.

The average mother gives any laxative the family may be using, while doctors give children a liquid laxative of suitable ingredients, suitable strength, and in suitable amount.

Make the change now to pure, California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you risk no more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition. You'll have a safer, more satisfactory result, too. Those little upsets and complaints just disappear and the child is soon normal again. Try it!

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Armistice Day was 16 years ago the 11th of this month, but there are thousands and thousands who have as vivid a memory of the event as though it happened but yesterday. It was a time when brave and patriotic soldiers wanted rest and peace from the onslaught of human life; when mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters were wishing it was over so their buddy could come home.

But while they waited in anxiety the glad news came that the boys had been told to lay down their arms. Today we recall that significant event which marked the cessation of the greatest and bloodiest war of history. We also gratefully remember the bravery and self-sacrifice of our American soldiers and sailors who so unselfishly took up arms at their country's call. Let us never forget them or their deeds in the hour of national and international need.

Armistice Day should go down in history as one of the most significant days in all the world annals. Crushed humanity can never forget such a day, for while the weapons of death were "stacked" the declaration of peace re-echoed its music in symbols of grateful joy. The reign of peace spread over the battle-torn land of Europe like a great calm after a storm.

The passing of those formidable days in the trenches was enough to cheer to the depths of the soul, bringing a further gladness that it was a war to end war and the world ever after would be a peaceful world. But was it? War to end war—yet 16 years after we see the nations of the earth spending $10,000,000 a day in preparation for the next war.

It is not enough to see 10,000,000 white crosses on Flanders fields—20,000,000 human beings, wounded, maimed, blinded, fragments of men hobbling, groping their way through the world. Every nation today seems to be preparing for war, when 16 years ago the demand went forth for the outlawing of war. Henry Ford says, "we need to get rid of a hundred thirsty war-makers, if we would have lasting peace." Maybe there is food for thought in those few warning words of advice.

QUARRELING WITH LIFE

If there is any one thing that may count more than anything else, it is a time of bodily and mental tranquility. That is why Hugh Judge penned those immortal words: "How good it is to retire into stillness. As food is to the body, so is quietude to the mind." A great many times we "kid" ourselves trying to think we are "better off" "on the jump," drawing on our nerve energy, and expecting to recover and keep fit on three or four hours sleep. Before we know it the warning comes, but carelessly there is no heed taken and no break in the human pace, until something snaps; May be it is the heart, and when once we abuse this dynamo of life, it is then irreparable. The penalty is usually sudden death!

The heart, although it is a delicate part of our being, is the most susceptible to desecration and will break down under the slightest error. It is the first stroke to give life and is the last to cease. Its power to function is a natural bequest, delicate, though ever intact for every physical necessity. In good health the heart is capable of lasting 150 years.

It is a mighty wise idea to keep well in mind the thought of keeping the heart with all diligence; as long as the heart is going good there is little need of fearing any physical disaster. Cheney says:

"The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet

A recall election too often is nothing but a political grudge; it is a costly attempt to "get even" with a foe who is held in contempt and the whole affair settled at the expense of the tax payers' money. So many times, however, we pay dear by electing officials where a recall is not only right but absolutely imperative for the good of people and honest government. It is all too true that the recall can be no successful citizenship in office without honesty, truthfulness, industry, integrity, purity of mind and a healthy body. All these must be built on some sane, religious inspiration. There is need of measuring and taking an inventory of our value, talents and worth. Then there will be more honest politics and conscientious servants of the people.

How very thankful the multitudes should be who do not have to live in the big "roaring city," where noise and other disadvantages are a constant drive on the nerves. Sick nerves will never recover except in quietude. This is why a vacation is always sought in the tranquil mountains or by the soothing seashore. One British authority has estimated that noise costs England more than $5,000,000 a week in decreased commercial and professional efficiency. If that is true, just imagine what human wasted energy must be! No wonder there are campaigns against disturbing noises of the great cities. One insurance concern claims to have increased its business efficiency 12 per cent by installing sound-proof ceilings.

Permanent prosperity cannot be achieved through restriction of output, and we are beginning to realize it to our great surprise. Taking chances by experiment is often met with severe loss. Uncle Sam stands as a major conservative man of genius. He seldom enters into an economic venture without weighing the facts, consequently he makes less mistakes. Just now, however, the most vital consideration for curing the country of its economic distress, is believed to be the Townsend Old-Age Revolving Pension Plan. A special committee including Dr. Townsend, the author of the Plan, are in Washington, D. C., at its interest. This is to be one of the first acts before the new Congress when it sets next January.

1934 EASTERN STAR OFFICERS
ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Point Loma chapter's worthy matron, Margaret Reinfrank and worthy patron Thomas Mason, entertained their officers of 1934 at a delicious luncheon served at the New Palace hotel Nov. 1st. The hostess used a very clever and novel centerpiece, a golden pumpkin transformed by realistic turkey surrounded by colorful autumn leaves, made a charming setting for the twenty officers seated around the worthy matron and patron each in the order of their respective offices.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, the host and hostess with their guests adjourned to the card room, where each officer was presented with a gift in appreciation of their work and cooperation in assisting to make the past year a very profitable and happy one for all. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in cards. Edythe Kenline won high, Maude Walters second in bridge, and Laura Rankin high prize in 500. The party was a delightful and fitting close to the united efforts of the 1934 matron, patron and their corps of officers.

Covers were laid for the hostess Margaret Reinfrank, host Thomas Mason, Mesdames Edythe Kenline, Ella Cole, Arley Hasting, Gladys Nelson, Hazel Lathrop, Carrie Mason, Florence Cobb, Medlar, Ruth Berndt,

Ramona Stages
Successful Celebration.

Under sponsorship of the Ramona Turkey Growers' association, Turkey Day at Ramona last Saturday was a gala event for that live little community of San Diego's back country. Some 10,000 people gathered to enjoy the parade, carnival and program of events held at their Collier park.

The day's activities started off with a breakfast at Kenilworth Inn for the county newspapermen and their wives, a compliment of the Turkey Growers' association, with Col. D. C. Collier in charge. Following the breakfast a two-hour motor trip was enjoyed to see turkey and dairy ranches of the immediate neighborhood, then a visit to the CCC camp at foot of Mount Woodson where the visitors were loaded into large trucks and taken to the summit to enjoy the rare occasion of viewing any or all of San Diego county by merely turning on the heel for a different view. To the west one may see the coast line, the city of San Diego, Point Loma, Camp Kearney, and down nearer the length of Poway valley, over to the right the city of Escondido and its wonderful valley. To the south and east one sees the Ramona valley nestling 1500 feet below, here some 2,000 settlers enjoy the wonderful climate of Southern California, with the many advantages of fruits and vegetables all the year around. Looking beyond the valley one sees the Santa Maria mountains, Eagle Peak and Mesa Grande in between. Turning to the left, the San Jacinto range and the San Bernardino mountains are plainly visible.

Ramona's parade was a colorful and greatly enjoyed affair, along with the afternoon program and events during which fifty turkeys were given to lucky visitors. With the large attendance all civic organizations serving turkey dinners were rushed to their full capacity.

Ramona's second annual Turkey Day celebration was a real success.

The Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a. m. with classes for all age groups in religious education.

Young People's service in the evening, beginning at 7 o'clock. The public is invited to these services.

EDUCATION SUBJECT OF SPEAKER WEDNESDAY

Jake Watson was chairman of the day's program at Kiwanis luncheon Wednesday noon, having for principal speakers Robert Williams, vice-principal of Point Loma high school and Miss Betty Curtis, student from the same institution.

Miss Curtis spoke of the many changes which have taken place in the past fifty years in the mechanics of our living, and stated that education too had advanced accordingly. She went on to explain many of these changes that have taken place in the class room and conduct of our public schools. In closing she urged all present as well as any others interested to attend "open house" to be held at all the city schools next week and there see for themselves our modern systems of learning.

Mr. Williams told the Kiwanians that Point Loma high school's enrollment was about 100 more than a year ago and that facilities of the institution were now entirely inadequate in every particular. The school was built to house approximately half the present number of students. This year the cafeteria is being used for a class room and opportunities for industrial training are sorrowfully lacking. The speakers told of some of the problems of the boys and the instructors. The greatest problem apparently was that of the younger boys adjusting themselves to a new school, new classmates, and generally to a new condition of affairs in their lives.

Herb Mohan, former member who has recently returned to the club, was presented with an Illinois pennant in honor of his alma mater.

The News does Job Printing

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

At 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, November 11, at the Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, the weekly forum-lecture will be presented by Mrs. Frances M. Dadd of Lomaland school. Mrs. Dadd's subject will be "The Spiritual Background in Education." Abbott Clark, also of the Point Loma headquarters' staff, will assist the lecturer in answering the questions presented by the audience.

Mrs. Dadd, who has specialized in the subject of education for many years, was trained as a teacher under Katherine Tingley from early childhood, having traveled with her in the United States, Cuba and Europe. Mrs. Dadd has continued her studies under G. de Purucker.

Mr. Clark's experience as lecturer on the Theosophical platform goes back some 45 years. During that time Mr. Clark was for a while secretary to William Q. Judge and received platform training from him. Mr. Clark inherits his enthusiasm from his mother, Sophronia Clark Smith, who was the first Theosophical Sunday School teacher in 1888. Mrs. Dadd maintains that the problem now recognized by educators in this country, that of infusing a spiritual quality into education without adopting any of the particular schools of theology of the day, was anticipated by Katherine Tingley 34 years ago when she started her educational work. Mme. Tingley demonstrated that there is a native impulse in the pupil towards ethical and spiritual expression, which if educated by proper training will balance the nature so that whatever scholastic values are gained will be used for the national and social welfare of all.

The Wanca Huta Group of Camp Fire Girls in Ocean Beach is a group of many interesting activities. Mrs. Deuel was their guardian school began, but because she moved into San Diego, the girls now have chosen Miss Genevieve Scully as their leader. The officers for this year are president Zaza Daun; secretary, Katherine Cowl; treasurer, Margaret Goeb; song leader, Pauline Gates. At various time thruout the year, the girls have candy sales to raise money for overnight hikes or trips. One of these sales was held last Saturday which proved most successful. Nearly every Saturday, the group engage in a hike to some point of interest. One of the outstanding affairs so far this year was their Hallowe'en party given Oct. 25th in the lobby of the Silver Spray Apt. hotel. About 75 girls attended and the evening was spent in playing games, having their fortunes told for a penny, and in general, having a good time. Prizes were won by Joyce Oberholser for the best costume, Shirley Wickern for tap dancing, and Josephine Castanien for the marshmallow race.

Mrs. Karl's H1 children turned their health lesson into a practical one Wednesday. Each child brought a vegetable, such as an onion, a carrot, etc., to school which was to be prepared for making vegetable soup. The children prepared the vegetables and when the soup was ready to eat, the girls served it in a very orderly manner.

Two class excursions were made this week. First, Miss Engel's H4 grade visited the art gallery in Balboa park on Tuesday. About 54 statues of mankind were on exhibit. These statues were made by Malvina Hoffman who spent 5 years in traveling around the world under the direction of the Field Museum of New York.

Miss McCabe's L5 children witnessed the landings and take-offs of the airplanes at Lindbergh Field. They also looked at the other interesting things at the airport.

OF INTEREST W.C.T.U. MEMBERS

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held at the Baptist church parlor Thursday, Nov. 15, at 2 p. m. Reports of state convention will be given.

The local W.C.T.U. was represented at the State 52nd Convention last week in Pasadena, by the following delegates, Mesdames J. W. Dunn, Mary Lynas and Minnie Clark. It was perhaps the most successful in recent years and was well attended. Dr. Walton, anti-cigarette worker, said: "Thirty percent of those in speak-easies in Los Angeles were found to be children of school age."

Dr. Cramp said: "The medical bill for America is $360,000,000 a year, much of which is narcotics and drugs."

In the late liquor convention the brewers declared they must train and keep the young people drinking.

Because of these things we, the W.C.T.U. feel we must still carry on. Minnie H. Clark, Cor. Sec.

BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE

The Bank of America N. T. & S. A. and its associated state bank, based on the called report of October 17, 1934, show an increase in deposits of approximately $180,000,000 over the called report of October 25, 1933. This is an increase of 24 per cent for the period of approximately one year. During the same period United States bond holdings increased $114,000,000 and other bonds owned $37,000,000. Total resources show an increase of $174,000,000. The figures do not include the bank's London Branch.

TRY ROASTING WALNUTS 15 MINUTES FOR DELICACY

Bigger crops and better walnuts are in store for the coast housewife this year, according to officials of Safeway Stores, Inc., who have just completed arrangements for the company's annual "grower-consumer walnut campaign."

The campaign this year is scheduled from November 12th to 17th, when walnuts are both seasonably popular and attractive in price. The present cost makes walnuts one of the few exceptions to the generally rising trend in food prices.

In a single week last year, Safeway-MacMarr Stores sold more than 145,000 pounds of walnuts. This year the company hopes to reach a total for the week of more than 200,000 pounds, enough to make a decided reduction in the present crop surplus and thus help the thousands of growers on the coast who would otherwise be handicapped by excessive supplies.

The present campaign will be helped considerably by the new and popular discovery. This is the fact that walnuts, when roasted, become a rare delicacy. All that is necessary is to put the walnuts in a hot oven for about 15 minutes, turning them occasionally so that they will brown evenly. The kernel then takes on a distinctly new flavor and the shell becomes quite brittle, making cracking easy.

Go To Church Sunday Did You Ever Stop To Think?

THAT you should put your faith in the future of your city. It costs nothing to be loyal to the home city.

Every citizen should boost the home city and help steer the ship that carries them.

A poor booster is a man who says something good about his home city only when he finds it convenient to do so.

A live booster doesn't wait; he hunts opportunities to boost.

A real booster is cordial and human; he boosts his city because he takes pleasure in doing it.

A real booster does not sit on the side lines; he gets in the game and does his full share to bring progress and prosperity to the home city.

He is not a hot-air merchant or a buck-passer. He is "Johnny on the Spot" and always willing to work.

He radiates a spirit of "We can and we will."

Real boosters are the kind of men to have; they are the men who do things; they are the men who build cities; they are the kind of men to tie to; they start somewhere and get somewhere. They are not only good tarters, but they are good finishers.

The Loman Reporter

Thursday and Friday morning of last week a student assembly featuring a political rally with speeches for the Republican, Progressive, and Democratic candidates for Governor, as well as candidates for local offices was given to the Junior and Senior high schools under the supervision of Mrs. Giles of the social science department. Suitable orchestra music; "California, Here I Come" by the two trumpeters, Richard Cannon and Victor Winn; banners; placards; and much applause from the audience made the election assembly one of the best we have had.

The students electioneering for the main candidates were:

Stuart Fraser for Merriam, Harvey Leonard and Arthur Skeets for Sinclair, Virginia Lillierap for Haight, and Blanch Price, Faye Emerson, Pat Buckley, Joan Nelson, Bob Merritt, Paul de Taronia, Ed Blake, Ethel Fried and Bill Shreve for various other candidates.

The staging was effectively done by Mr. Shepherd's stage crew directed by Louis Geiger. Mrs. Giles, assisted by Mr. Shepherd, put on more than a good stunt in this assembly. It was an educational program, entertainingly set forth.

PLHS—

On Tuesday morning of this week while their parents were seeking various voting precincts to exercise the right of suffrage the Lomans exercised theirs in a straw ballot managed by Miss Ethel Henderson and her social science classes. Much interest, aroused by the Election assembly, was evinced in the ballot and in the results:

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from John: "He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth."

A verse in the Responsive Reading, from Galatians, states: "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

One of the Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon cites Paul's words to the Romans, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." Another selection cites his words to the Corinthians, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "The Master said, 'No man cometh unto the Father [the divine Principle of being] but by me.' Christ, Life, Truth, Love, for Christ said, 'I am the way.' Physical causation was put aside from first to last by this original man, Jesus."

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

The students of the Warren-Walker school are interested in the various types of animal life which have been visiting on the school premises of late. Every afternoon a covey of mountain quail come hurrying across the playground to feed under the palm trees. At first they were very timid but they are daily becoming more friendly and their visits are anticipated by all. Many other birds are stopping at the feeding table and every day a fresh supply of seed must be put out for them. A little, wild rabbit was so interested in school that he was almost lured indoors but at the last moment scurried away.

The toy rhythm band is making rapid progress and is preparing a program to be presented soon.

A few weeks ago Bill Reynolds in the third grade planted an unknown seed in his garden. He didn't know whether or not it would grow, but to his surprise, it has developed into a sturdy young plant. At the present time no one in school has been able to identify it, so the students and faculty refer to it as "Reynolds Mystery Plant."

William Welch and Arnold Gladden, who were absent for a few days due to illness, are back in school fully recovered.

CHAPTER V--Continued

"Nothing can hurt him again, Milly. You--"

"So, I've run Milly Gooch to earth at last! Mademoiselle Millee! And with you, Gerard! She would be!"

With a smothered imprecation, Rodney wheeled to face Len Calloway who leaned against the side of the door. With difficulty he kept his voice low.

"Don't you see what has happened? If you can't keep your dirty mouth shut, get out."

The sound Calloway made was more a snarl than a laugh, though an expression of sardonic mirth doubtless had been his intention.

"I'm going."

He turned to Prudence who, white and still, knelt beside the couch on which Jean was stirring restlessly.

"Any ten-year-old child would get wise to what's been going on between those two, Miss Schuyler."

Rodney Gerard shut his teeth hard into his lip. Prue could deduce anything from Calloway's voice and implication. What would she think?

Milly Gooch caught his hand and with a choking sob laid her cheek against it.

"What shall I do, Roddy? Grandpop's gone and I have only you now."

Half of her appeal to him was genuine grief, half was staged to irritate Len Calloway who was glaring at her from the threshold, Gerard decided.

With a suggestive laugh Calloway departed. The physician touched Gerard's shoulder.

"You'd better get that youngster home--quick."

"I will."

Rodney bent over the girl crouched beside the crumpled body of the clown. He freed the hand she still clutched. "I'll see you tonight, Milly. Pull yourself together." He laid his hand on the bowed head before he turned away.

"Come, Jean. I'll carry you, dear."

The town behind them, Gerard sent the roadster forward along the smooth road between its gay borders of fall shrubs. Once he looked at Prudence. She had her face against Jean's hair; the child's long lashes lay like fringes on her pale cheeks. He said gruffly,

"What a mix-up! A town burns up."

A circus is thrown off schedule. A clown sent scouting. He took a chance on your garden--he'd try anything once--and then--a man who hates me lays his hand on my shoulder--and this for Jean--and tragedy for Chicot.

Chicot's daughter, her husband, and child lived in the red brick house when Milly Gooch was a little girl. He visited them. That was what he meant yesterday when he said that he had lived in this region.

"I suspected you had seen him before."

"And because of what Len Calloway implied, you have me tried and sentenced, I'll bet."

She did not answer, only pressed her cheek closer against Jean's hair. He kept both hands tight on the wheel.

Why had he let her invade his life? Why had he allowed her to make him madly happy or so infernally miserable by a look? Rapture and agony. He knew what the words meant now.

"I'll drop you at your gate," he proposed curtly.

"No. I will go on to High Ledges. I won't leave Jean until I see her with her mother."

Jean opened her eyes and lifted her head from Prudence's shoulder.

"I'm not going home until Mother has gone. There's nothing the matter with me except that I feel kind of dizzy; it helps steady things to keep my eyes closed. You won't mind if I stay with Miss Prue for a while, will you, Uncle Rod?"

"You should be with your mother, dear."

"I'm not going to be with my mother, so that's that."

"Getting back to normal fast, aren't you, K. K.?"

"Course I am, Uncle Rod. Let me stay with Miss Prue today, that's a peach. I'll wait on Mr. David. I love him."

She began to cry.

"Let her stop with me," Prudence pleaded.

"No. She's going back to High Ledges and I hope I land her there before her mother gets away. I had persuaded her to leave Jean with me; it is only fair that she should know what happened, what a flop I am as a guardian."

Except for an occasional query as to Jean's comfort, Gerard said nothing more during the long ride home.

They reached the red brick house. Gerard looked down at Jean.

"Pull yourself together, K. K. If you and I are to be on our own, we've got to go forward like soldiers, not whimper when we have to do things we don't like. Get me?"

Jean straightened, wiped her eyes, gave him a watery smile.

"Sure I get you, Uncle Rod. I feel fine now, really I do." She slipped a hand under his arm. "Perhaps, perhaps Mother has gone already," she whispered hopefully.

In his mind Gerard echoed the hope as they approached the house of stone and oak which his grandfather had built. He stopped the roadster at the front steps.

Judkins appeared as if by magic. Gerard sprang from the car, lifted Jean out.

"Where's Mrs. Walter, Judkins?"

"She went soon after you left, sir. She decided to motor to the city."

"Ask your sister to take a look at Miss Jean, will you? I want to phone."

"Yes, sir. Mr. Armstrong arrived soon after you left."

"Armstrong! So soon! Where is he?"

"He went for a walk. Mrs. Walter was just going, and things were in kind of a stir, so he--" He coughed discreetly behind his hand.

"So he stepped out. I get you. Go up and lie down, Jean, and if you are good and feel fine, you may dine with us. You'll like Jim Armstrong, K. K., he's a great old boy."

"I won't move from the couch all day, if only I may have dinner with you just as if I were grown up, Uncle Rod. Do you suppose Mr. Jim will like me? I wonder--I wonder if he will fall in love with Miss Prue--too."

Gerard felt his face warm with color.

"That last wisecrack has shown me that you are back to normal, K. K., quite back to normal. Now listen, one more like that and you'll spend the winter in the bosom of your family--in New York city."

After dinner Jean sat on a low stool beside the fire. Elbow on her knee, chin in one hand, her eyes were on Jim Armstrong, spectacled, sinewy, with an out-of-door bigness.

"It's corking to have you here, Jim. You haven't changed, unless you've grown heavier," Gerard commented.

"It's grand to be here, Rod. I won't say that you haven't changed in the last two years though. Where's that lazy drawl which drew the female of the species after you in squads?"

"I chuckled that when I decided to become a lumber king. I'm in business now, as I wrote you. At least I'm making a stab at it. At present I've struck a snag. There's a guy here named Len Calloway, also in the lumber business, who threatens to boycott any man who works for me."

"What has stirred this Calloway up?"

"I beat him to it in persuading Miss Schuyler to engage me to cut the timber in a tract she owns."

"Who is Miss Schuyler? She doesn't belong by any chance to that family--"

Gerard glanced at Jean whose ears were fairly standing out in eagerness to hear.

"She is a sister of David Schuyler. Know him? He was a New York lawyer."

"I've heard of him. Poor--"

"Miss Schuyler inherited a tract of woodland, along with a house and other land. She came here to farm--her brother's health had broken down. Immediately the aforementioned Calloway--"

"Hate him pretty much, don't you, Rod?"

"It isn't a chuckling matter, Jim. Si Puffer, who worked for the new owner's uncle and is a sort of handy man for her, told her not to let Len cut for her. I decided that I would cut for her and myself--that's when I sent for you. Calloway was furious as--well, we've had trouble over another matter."

"Is Miss Schuyler--young?" Armstrong quizzed, as he lighted his pipe.

"Yes, and so pretty," Jean chirped eagerly. "Mother Puffer says that her eyes are like brown pansies and that her voice would coax the birds off the bushes. When she laughs her eyes are all gold spangles."

"K. K., you've been so quiet I had forgotten you were here. It's time you went upstairs. Toodle along now like a good girl."

"All right, Uncle Rod." She kissed him, and with a little curtsy said good-night to Armstrong. The two men rose and waited until she had left the room. Then the forester dropped a question.

"Has this man Calloway by any chance a sentimental interest in your neighbor?"

"He'd better not have."

"Why the growl?"

Rodney Gerard rose impetuously and stood back to the fire. "Here are my cards face up on the table. I'm mad about Prudence Schuyler. I will marry her if I have to move the world to do it. Get that straight?"

"I'll say I get it straight. I can read a 'No Trespassing' sign when I see one, believe me. Does the lady with the spangled eyes realize that she is posted, Rod?"

"It's no joke to me, Jim. I guess the old song's right, 'Love has a meaning all its own'--to different people. Mine is the one-woman brand. The first time I met Prue--I can't explain it to you, you will think I've gone goofy--I felt as if--as if the universe had been made over and I was re-born--with an ambition to grab the world by the tail and a determination to make the girl love me."

"Raring to go off the deep end, aren't you? Um. Pretty serious jam you're in, Roddy."

"It darn well is."

Armstrong laid his hand on Gerard's shoulder. His eyes were warm with affection.

"Buck up! I don't know how any girl could resist you. You generally get what you want. To return to our muttons. Contracts made to sell your lumber?"

"Not a contract. I have been so, what Si Puffer calls het up, with this fight with Calloway that I hadn't thought where I would dispose of it."

"You'd better get busy on that end, I'll give you a list of going concerns; then you'd better hustle after business. Do we start our investigation of the timber tracts tomorrow?"

"Yes," Gerard glanced at the clock. "You'll excuse me, Jim, if I break away? Something important I've got to take care of tonight. Si Puffer is engaging men to go along with us tomorrow to cut."

Puffer appeared in the doorway. "Here he is now! Come in, Si. This is my old friend Jim Armstrong who has come to tell us what trees to take out."

"Pleased to make your acquaintance, Jim. Gorry-me, Rod, I'm plumb discouraged. Don't know's we're goin' to need a forester."

"Why not? What has happened?"

"Now don't fly off the handle like that just because I hint we're in for trouble. Whatta mean is, I've been all over the village tryin' to hire men to cut for us tomorrow. They all had some fool excuse. I cornered one of 'em an' jest squeezed it out of him that Len Calloway had let it be known that none of them would get more work from him--ever--if they hired out to you. He's got 'em scared. He pointed out to you that might start out big, Rod, but you wouldn't stick; that this was just a fad of yours, an' where would they be when you quit?"

"I quit," Gerard's blue eyes were black. "Go back and tell those men that there isn't room in this town for Len Calloway and me and that I am staying."

CHAPTER VI

His challenge to Calloway had been good theater, but could he back it up, Gerard asked himself, as a few moments later his car shot into the highway between the two great iron gates set in stone posts at High Ledges. He wanted to reach the show grounds before Milly went on for her act. Perhaps he couldn't help her, but if he didn't, she might turn to someone not so disinterested as he.

His thoughts turned back to the first time he had seen Milly Gooch. Her father and mother had hired the old, out-of-repair red brick house for almost nothing and had lived there one summer while out of a circus job. He, at High Ledges from prep school for vacation, had spent every available hour with the family listening to their stories of the Big Top.

After the Gooch family left the red brick house for the circus, Milly had come each year to visit the Puffers to get "fed up" and some red blood into her. Mother Puffer had told him, he had seen her rarely, but, as she had grown into a stunning looking girl, her long, narrow eyes and her expert use of them had caught Len Calloway. Had it been just an exciting game with her? She had become engaged to him. Next he heard of her he had received a wire:

"ROD. MUST SEE YOU STOP SHOW IN YONKERS SATURDAY STOP DON'T FAIL ME"

"MILLY GOOCH"

He could recall even his amazement at the summons. Why had she sent for him? In that far away summer Walter had been more of a friend than he; he had been fascinated by her mother. Of course he would go.

He remembered the defiance in her big dark eyes, the whiteness of her face under its make-up, as she had whispered:

"I--I've walked out on Len, Rod."

He recalled that he had laughed at her--it was unbelievable that Calloway would release anything he once had held. She had retorted:

"Yeah, it isn't a joke. I--well, your brother Walter's been my boyfriend. I just burn him up. I'm sick of ridin', ridin' whether I'm feeling bum or not, and having Grandpop out of a job half the time. I'm going to be a lady and be taken care of and take care of him."

"Walter!" Gerard felt again the shock that had brought him up standing. "Walter! Walter has a wife."

He remembered her laugh. "Say, Big Boy, where have you come from? Been asleep since the Puritans landed?"

He had caught her hands tight in his. "Look here, Milly, you can't do that. Walter isn't worth it. Milly! Milly! Promise that you--you won't--until I see you again."

Quite plainly now he could see her shining eyes as they had met his.

"Listen, if you care what I do, I promise, Roddy."

He sent the car ahead in a burst of speed. A string of wagons was leaving the show grounds as he entered. That meant that the audience was in the big tent. Gerard stopped before the tent on the wall of which "MADEMOISELLE MILLEE" was stamped in black letters. As if she had been waiting for him, Milly Gooch stepped from behind "The curtain drawn across the front of it."

Never had he seen her look lovelier. Her dark hair was curled close to her head; the mascara on her lashes increased the brilliance of her narrow, sloe-black eyes; the crimson of her lips accentuated the ivory pallor of her skin. Her great dark eyes glittered with tears.

"You sure are a dependable guy, Roddy." She perched on the top of a pedestal. "Take that chair. Say, wasn't that a terrible deal Grandpop got this morning. And wasn't it like Len Calloway to put on his act at just that minute! That bozo's grown old."

"When did you talk with him last, Milly?"

"The day I gave him back his ring. Look out for him, he has it in for you, Roddy. Doesn't he know that it was Walter, not you, who made me break with him?"

"I came to see if I could help about your grandfather. Won't you need money?"

"Not from you. The management takes care of that. Who was the kid Grandpop saved?"

"Walter's little girl, Jean."

"Well, of all the breaks--Grandpop passing out for the kid of the man he hated." She laughed, laughed until the sound cracked in an hysterical sob.

"Milly! Milly! Stop! You won't be able to ride if you don't. Here, look up." He pulled a handkerchief from his pocket. "Let me wipe your eyes. Now smile as if I were a Johnnie in the front row."

She looked up with an attempt which twisted his heart.

"That-a-girl! All set now?"

She choked back a sob. Caught the handkerchief.

"All set, Roddy. May I have this?"

"Sure, but what the dickens will you do with it? Haven't any pockets con- cealed in that ritzy costume, have you?"

Death Valley an Inferno in Summer, Winter Ideal

Although it lies below sea level for 78 miles of its total length of 113 miles, Death valley has gained the fame of being an inferno of heat in the summer, while the winter climate is considered ideal, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Death valley's greatest depth is 310 feet below sea level at Bad Water. 19 miles south of Furnace Creek Inn, yet only 16 miles in an air line across the valley from Bad Water majestic Telescope peak rears its crest to 11,045 feet above sea level, and 11,355 feet above the low point of the valley, the greatest rise in such short distance of any mountain in the United States. Even Mt. Whitney, premier peak of continental United States, which towers 14,496 feet above sea level, rises only 10,708 feet above the level of Owens valley at Lone Pine. The visitor at Bad Water, reached by a desert road south from Furnace Creek, actually views a higher mountain than Mt. Whitney when he gazes westward to the summit of Telescope peak.

Telescope peak, which is an outstanding landmark for many miles in every direction, either in or out of Death valley, was first scaled in 1890 by W. T. Henderson, who gave it the name it bears because of the magnificent view to be had from its summit.

For That Turtle Soup

Of the three common kinds of sea turtles, the hawksbill is exploited for tortoise shell, and the green turtle for its flesh, says the American Nature association. The remaining one of the trio, the loggerhead, seems not to offer any special temptation to man, but like the others has its nest robbed to an extent that threatens its abundance.

A North American Spectacle

Columbia glacier, in Alaska, is the largest and most spectacular glacier in the world. The slow-moving motion of the glacier creates a noise like the rumbling of distant thunder or heavy cannonading. The roar of the sliding and falling masses, reverberating throughout the surrounding mountains, may be heard 12 miles out to sea.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn Public Ledger

The Blood-Splashed Ring

IN THE course of time thousands of persons have disappeared as completely as though they had dropped through the earth, but few of these mysteries have been quite as weird as that of Marie Anna Holzmann, of Augsburg, Bavaria.

She had lodged for years with a shoemaker in that town, but he did not report the case for a month after she had left the house.

He explained the delay by saying that she was in the habit of leaving for a few days at a time, and he did not want to cause unnecessary excitement.

The police felt that it was incumbent upon them to do something, so they placed the shoemaker under arrest.

He was held as "a material witness."

Many weeks went by without the discovery of anything to account for this strange disappearance.

Then the shoemaker was released.

He went to his home and, prowling about the loft of the house, made a ghastly discovery.

It was the trunk of a human body stuck in a bag and fastened to the rafters.

The police were called in for a second time, and on this occasion they succeeded in locating different parts of the body in various parts of the house.

The remains were assembled and a peculiarity of the teeth made it clear that the body was that of Marie Anna Holzmann.

After that the authorities began to use their brains.

They made it their business to find out who else had lived in the house at the time the girl lived there.

They learned that two men had been there for at least part of the time.

One was Charles Steiner, who was supposed to be half-witted, and the other was John Rauschmeir, a shrewd and unprincipled sort of chap who had no visible means of livelihood.

The Bavarians did what the police of New York or Chicago would have done under the circumstances.

They located the two men and they shadowed them for many weary days.

So far as Steiner was concerned, it was love's labor lost, and they pinned their hope upon Rauschmeir doing something that might incriminate himself.

Their expectations were realized.

One day the man went into a pawnshop and offered to pledge a woman's coat.

It was a coat that had belonged to Marie Anna Holzmann!

The man was arrested and accused of the murder.

But he laughed at the charge. He admitted that he was a criminal and cheerfully confessed that he had stolen the coat from the girl's room, but ridiculed the idea of having had anything to do with her murder.

But stimulated with the progress they were making, the police made a third search of the lodgings.

This time they found a cheap ring--a man's ring that was splashed with blood.

Inquiries were made in the neighborhood, and a man was found who said that he had seen this ring on Rauschmeir's finger.

That was rather convincing, but the police hesitated to show it to the man for fear that he might deny ownership and thus spoil their case.

How could they contrive to make him admit that the ring belonged to him without letting him know that such an admission would be fatal to him.

They recalled the play scene in "Hamlet" when the moody Dane declared that the play was the thing to catch the conscience of the king.

Why could not a little play on their part convict this man they believed to be a murderer?

It was worth the attempt.

So the police gathered together a quantity of jewelry and placed it on a table, together with the ring, which had been washed of its bloodstains.

They brought Rauschmeir from his cell and pointed to the loot upon the table.

"What is the use of your denying that you committed murder," said the police chief, "when we have here the stuff you stole from the girl's room?"

"I didn't steal it," retorted the man, and, seeing the ring, he picked it up, saying: "As a proof of it, there is my own ring."

He slipped it on his finger, and that little incident was the bit of evidence upon which a case was built which ended in his conviction and execution.

Use Parts of Cow in Plane

The cow does not fly, but John Wil- son, chief inspector of the Boeing Air- plane company, lists many parts of its anatomy which do.

The caseln in milk makes a strong glue, and caseln glue is used extensively in the construction of wing ribs, panels of plywood in the airplane cabin, and so on.

Hot glue is made of cow's hoofs. Its hair is used for chair padding and sound deadening. Hides are made into seat covers and straps and into the fine hide glues which are used in wooden propeller manufacture.

Finally, the goldbeaters' skin for dirigibles is made of its entrails. Certainly the cow makes praiseworthy contributions to aerial navigation.

Cape Ensemble That Has Chic

PATTERN 1827

Twice as much chic--that's the fashion secret of this cape ensemble. On the street, one likes a wrap of some sort, and a snappy detachable cape will do the trick! When removed, there's a truly smart frock. We've made a large sketch of the frock so that you can study its chic lines. The raglan sleeves have an inverted pleat for added interest, the neckline is cut square and is finished with a crisp bow pulled through slashes. Pleats lend delightful animation to the skirt. Print or monotone would be good--in one of the new novelty cottons, in crepe, linen or silk.

Pattern 1827 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 4 3/4 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number, BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Human "Leather" Used to Bind French Book

A book bound in skin taken from the shoulders of a woman is to be presented to the French National library. Years ago, when the late Camille Flammarion, the astronomer, was a youth, he danced with the lady of the shoulders. And as he danced he whispered flattering comments on their whiteness and loveliness. Months later Flammarion received a copy of the lady's will and a note from her doctor advising him of her death. Then came a package containing the skin. The doctor, in accordance with her will, had removed the skin from her shoulders. It was tanned and treated, and then used to cover the book "La Pluralité des Mondes." That was in 1882. The book, still in perfect condition, is now in the possession of Mme. Flammarion, but will shortly go to the French National library.

Climbing Pike's Peak

At the time of the discovery, Zebulon Pike expressed the positive opinion that the Colorado peak named in his honor was so high that it never would be climbed. Automobiles now race to its summit over a perfect speedway.

For good digestion

—there is nothing that can take the place of your own gastric, digestive secretions. Frequently, poor digestion is due to lack of tone in the stomach walls—because of low blood strength. S.S.S., the great, scientifically-tested medicine, is specially designed to fill a two-fold purpose in this respect... it aids in stimulating the flow of natural stomach secretions... and by building up deficient red corpuscles, with their hemo-globin, it restores to a more normal functioning the secretions of the stomach digestive juices... so necessary for good digestion. This double value of S.S.S. is important.

By all means try S.S.S. for better health and more happiness. Its benefits are progressive... accumulative... and enduring. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion... sound sleep... and renewed strength. This is why many say "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Economy in Wise Use of Dye Pot

Renovating Fall Draperies Comparatively Easy Procedure.

In the season of renewing fall draperies for winter use not all pocketbooks permit of indulging in purchase of new goods. If the draperies are sound, but faded, the problem is not too difficult. Change can be effected by use of the dye pot, even if not in the hands of an expert. Or a cheap fabric in white can be bought and colored.

To dye fabrics an even shade is not a matter to be dismissed lightly. If the goods are to bear the close scrutiny which is accorded to dress materials. But curtains, partly because they hang in folds, and partly because the light behind them helps to distribute the color, can be successful to a greater degree in amateur hands.

Soap dyes do not demand the washing of the material beforehand, but it is not a bad rule to follow, with all dyes, that material dyes better when clean, or at least relieved of its greatest burden of dust. A plunger, such as is used in washing blankets, is recommended. A wooden spoon or stick for stirring the goods in the dye pot is needed.

Excellent instructions are to be found on the packages of dyes, but there are others, more personal which come only from the experienced. Wear an old dress, and a pair of stockings that can't be harmed. Dye is sure to splash on them. If your shoes are good, wear rubbers, as they, too, will get marked in transferring the newly dyed fabric from pot to line, or wash tub to pot. Dip and dry a piece of the fabric before dipping the article. Have the right kind of dye for your goods.

Curtains, if somewhat streaked, are not beyond use, but if they come out actually different shades their beauty is doubtful. To avoid this mishap get this feature of dyeing clearly in mind. A solution becomes weaker with every article dyed in it. Naturally the goods takes up the dye, and any moisture in goods diminishes the strength of the dye. Make a larger quantity of dye than is to be used on the first pair or first two pair of curtains. Measure it, so many cups to the gallon, and throw away the weakened dye solution after the first lot is dipped. Mix the next quantity in the same proportion and use the same number of curtains.

Be sure to give the dyed curtains clear line space. Have nothing near them they can mark. Dry them opened up, not folded over the line. Iron while damp. This process is called "refinishing." One woman known to the writer re-dips her living room draperies a dark rich brown every year. She makes no work of it at all.

Forests of the Sea

Trunks of seaweed 18 inches in circumference, with branches and leaves like a tree, were discovered recently by a botanist in the Antarctic ocean, notes a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine. It remains to be proved whether they can be used as firewood.

Unmapped jungles of vegetation lie beneath the waves. Dr. William Beebe, the marine explorer, glimpsed a real forest of seaweed when investigating, in his bathysphere, the continental shelf of the coast of Chile. Some of the stems towered to a height of 600 feet, three times higher than the world's tallest tree. Inexperienced voyagers often mistake the enormous drifting masses of seaweed that appear at their thickest every summer in the Sargasso sea for islands. Their total weight on the surface has been scientifically estimated at 20,000,000 tons, while another 54,000,000 tons is said to lie below.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of strong laxatives may do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gently helps the average person's bowels while nature is restoring their regularity. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. At all druggists, ready for use, in big bottles.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL EVENTS

Mark Insko suffered a broken nose at high school last Friday. Dr. Wilhoit set the fractured bone.

Jim Morrison of the Bank of America and Mrs. Morrison are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby daughter, on Thursday, November 1st.

The women of the Methodist church will have a food sale Saturday morning, November 10th, at the Ocean Beach Hardware store.

Miss Mabel and Miss Shirley Charles, 5077 Cape May avenue, are enjoying a visit from their sister, Mrs. Myrtis Hodges and her daughter Jane, who arrived from New York via Panama canal.

Mrs. I. R. Wright arrived Tuesday from Porterville and has rented one of the Jordan cottages at 5070 Narragansett avenue. Mr. Wright is in Navy service and is returning with the fleet today from the east coast.

Friends of Miss Priscilla Perry will be pleased to learn that she is steadily improving in health. Miss Perry expected to leave this week by boat for a visit with relatives and friends in San Francisco until the Christmas holidays.

The Women's Circle of the Baptist church have arranged a program for Friday evening, Nov. 16. The young people of the church will present a playlet entitled "Grandmother's Patchwork Quilt". The public is cordially invited.

The ladies of Trinity Episcopal church, will sponsor a musicale and tea, to be given at the home of Mrs. C. N. Fiske, 4505 Voltaire, Friday, November 16 at 2 p. m. The musical program will be under the direction of Mrs. Edith Mill Scott.

Fred Roberts of Ocean Beach has been appointed to act as the new scoutmaster for troop 61 which meets in the scout hut at the Methodist church. Mr. Roberts is a newcomer to Ocean Beach, coming here from Texas, where he has been engaged in Boy Scout activities. Friday night will be his first night at a regular meeting of troop 61. He is therefore desirous of having all the boys attend.

In this week's issue of the News is an article by A. J. Allen, world traveler, telling about seeing America. This is the first of a series of three travel articles by Mr. Allen, the following two will tell about the Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico and the third will be about the Waitomo Caves of New Zealand, the Glow Worm caves, the only known ones of their kind in the world.

HOUSES FILLING UP RAPIDLY

Furnished houses that were vacated by summer tourists a short time ago are now being rapidly occupied it is said, by winter residents and families of Navy men who are returning with the fleet.

After a good summer's occupancy owners of property for rent are pleased with the outlook for a profitable winter. Folks who once live at the beaches are always anxious to return for the convenience of our schools and nearness to a metropolitan center.

Mrs. E. M. Pollard has returned from Los Angeles after spending a week with friends, says, she enjoyed the trip but glad to get to the beach again.

Mrs. Myron Insko left Wednesday morning for a visit with old time friends in Los Angeles. The lady she will visit with has been a lifelong friend as were the mothers of these two women. Mr. Insko expects to go north on business Friday and will return with Mrs. Insko.

Miss Emeline E. Howard, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Howard, 3227 Thirtieth St., and Robert R. Darby of San Diego were united in marriage in the impressive ceremony of the Episcopal church, Saturday, Nov. 3, at 4 p. m., by the Rev. John Osborn, at Trinity church, Ocean Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cords returned Saturday from their trip to Nebraska and Detroit. Bill had the pleasure of driving home from Detroit the first 1935 Packard automobile to be turned out by the Packard factory. The editor had the luxuriousness of a ride in your other Packard Bill, and we're willing to risk a ride in this 1935 model.

Much interest is being shown in the series of sermons Rev. W. S. Dunn is giving Sunday evenings at the Baptist church, in the subject of "The Jew and His Place in the Present World's Crises." Surprising facts were shown, relative to late events and how closely they fulfilled their foretelling in prophecies of ages ago. You are invited.

Mrs. F. M. Tibbitts of 4824 Santa Monica avenue returned home last Saturday from a most pleasant visit with her son in Honolulu, T. H. Mrs. Tibbitts received the Ocean Beach News while in Hawaii and sent us a descriptive letter of the island but the letter arriving the week before election has so far been crowded out of our paper.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Ulrich enjoyed a birthday party in honor of Mr. Ulrich at their Descanco home last Sunday. Among those attending from Ocean Beach and San Diego were Mr. and Mrs. James O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. E. McClure, Mrs. James Dougherty, Mrs. W. C. Fisher and daughter of the host and hostess, Mrs. John B. Dapper.

1935 OFFICERS ELECTED
POINT LOMA EASTERN STARS

Point Loma chapter elected the following officers November 5, to serve for the ensuing year: Worthy matron, Edythe Kenline; worthy patron, Harry Sweet; associate matron, Gladys Nelson; associate patron, Neil Berg; secretary, Ella Davis Cole; treasurer, Arley Hasting; conductress, Hazel Lathrop and associate conductress, Ruth Berndt.

BOYS ENJOY BIRTHDAY PARTY

John McCaffrey, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McCaffrey, 4838 Santa Monica avenue, was eight years old on Wednesday, Nov. 7th and celebrated the event with a party. Of course, John is quite a young man now, as also are all the other folks who came to the party. John's mother made a lovely birthday cake. The young men had a delightful time playing games, etc., and we just won't tell you who won the prizes, and you'll never guess. But after refreshments, cake, jello, ice cream, the young folks were tired, and quite ready to be children, because children have so much better times than the grown up folks.

Among those present were Johnny Cooper, Freddy Schaeffer, Tommy Marcott, Laurence Purdy, Richard Steingel, John McCaffrey, Robert and Joe McCaffrey.

GIRL SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Girls taking child nurse gave a party for small children. Each girl brought a child from the age of 5-8. Served ice cream and cookies. At the Ocean Beach elementary school.

tion of Drakewell Memorial park. The cradle of petroleum industry. The well was completed August, 1859 and was sunk by Colonel Drake and Peter Wilson.

While visiting my son in Pittsburgh I learned that there are about 1,400 bridges in and around Pittsburgh.

Many people have asked me what were some of the most outstanding things that I saw at the Century of Progress World's Fair in Chicago. Drama of the Heavens at the Alder Planetarium; the Skyride; the hall of Science; the villages of the different nations, but the cutest of all was the Midget Village with 158 midgets from all over the world; the Ford and General Motors buildings and in the Hall of Religion will be found the treasures of ancient religious art, Greek, Rome and Oriental, statues, mirrors, vases, Christian and Jewish glass and ivories and the Great Chalice of Antioch. This Chalice was found in 1910 in the ruins of an old Cathedral in Antioch. The figures on the Chalice with the youthful Jesus are the evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John and also John's younger brother, James the Greater.

Also in this building is a religious heirloom which was handed down from generation to generation. A brilliant mother-of-pearl carving of the Lord's Last Supper. The love of a young Armenian artist for his mother almost 200 years ago is reflected in this beautiful hand-carved masterpiece. In the year 1735, Ivaz Kahn Beyian said to his mother, "I will make you something that will never be duplicated and that will be preserved forever as proof of my affection for you." He spent 27 years of patient, loving labor carving this masterpiece by hand from brilliant mother-of-pearl obtainable only in a shark-infested section of the Red Sea. He became totally blind 65 days after presenting the completed work of art to his mother. The Great Altar of the Green Jade Pagoda has been universally acclaimed as a great wonder in artistic achievement. It was carved from one piece of jade and is valued at $1,000,000.

I saw the opening day of the old World's Fair 41 years ago which cost $40,000,000. I remember the Ferris Wheel and the old mid-way. Grover Cleveland then president of the United States journeyed out to Chicago to extend greetings in person and there was a crowd of citizens 500,000 strong to greet him. Now we have the Century of Progress which cost $37,000,000. Out of 100 years of flaming history from a shabby little post on the shores of Lake Michigan to the glory of one of the mightiest cities on this old spinning globe. You cannot describe this city and the exposition. You must see it for yourself. Brisbane says "All he has written of the Century of Progress has not described it. You cannot describe what is truly great and scattered details only cause the great to seem small."

Anna Rebekah Lodge Dance
Tuesday, November 20th

Members of Anna Rebekah lodge no. 137, I.O.O.F. are completing their plans for their sixteenth annual barn dance, to be held in Ratliff's academy, 11th and Broadway, on Tuesday evening, November 20th.

The lodge is calling on all of its members and friends to cooperate in putting over this affair in a big way. This one big event given by the lodge each year is one of its methods for raising funds for distressed members and, in particular, toward the maintenance of the I.O.O.F. Orphan's Home which is located at Gilroy, California. These annual affairs have established for themselves an enviable record for a good time. Several cash prizes will be offered for best robe costumes.

Bridge and 500 will be arranged in a side hall at Ratliff's, which will enable card players to devote themselves to winning prizes which will be offered for high score at each table. Arrangements will be made for the card players to enjoy a recess, at which time they may "take in" the grand march and display of costumes competing for prizes.

The evening promises to be a delightful one. Ocean Beach people can buy tickets event at Ocean Beach News office.
